ITA Software Appoints ATPCO Expert

(Cambridge, MA, September 3, 2002) - ITA Software, Inc. announced today that Tom Vogel has joined the company as its senior expert on ATPCO. ATPCO is the world leader in the collection and distribution of fare and fare related data for the airline industry.

Tom will be responsible for ensuring ITA Software's continued leadership in industry standards setting. Tom will also be active in ITA Software's strategy to deliver cost effective and innovative software solutions to the air travel industry, including proprietary refund/reissue, competitive pricing and fare management solutions.

Tom joins ITA Software from Worldspan, where he most recently held the position of Senior Product Specialist for Fares and Pricing. Prior to Worldspan, Tom worked in systems development at Amadeus and at System-One, the CRS founded by Eastern Airlines.

Tom's career in the airline fares and pricing field began more than 25 years ago when he joined ATPCO as a Tariff Analyst. He later joined the ATPCO Systems Development Group and participated in the initial design for the Automated Rules product, which is now used by airline pricing engines worldwide.

Tom holds a BA degree from the University of South Carolina. He currently resides in Miami with his wife and two children.

About ITA Software

ITA Software (www.itasoftware.com) has developed the world's most advanced technology for airfare pricing, airfare shopping, scheduling, and seat availability. ITA Software is the only airfare pricing and shopping system that is not dependent upon Computer Reservation legacy mainframe pricing systems. ITA Software licenses this technology to ORBITZ, Delta Air Lines, America West Airlines, SITA, Amadeus, and others. ITA Software was founded by computer scientists from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.
